

GOINGS ON ABOUT TOWN

TILT Brass. Photograph by Christaan Felber.

CLASSICAL MUSIC BRASS BLAST

In the past few years, a number of New York brass players have built upon their backgrounds in Bruckner, jazz, and band music to perform innovative pieces in a muscular chamber style. TILT Brass, always fun and forward-looking, offers a tenth-anniversary concert this week. (See page 13.)

TILT BRASS TENTH ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

Having spearheaded a new, high-voltage aesthetic in the city's music scene—chamber brass—the trombonist Chris McIntyre's ensemble is ready to party. The official tenth-anniversary concert at Roulette (featuring such musicians as the trumpeter Gareth Flowers and the percussionist David Shively) offers a bushel of world-première and U.S.-première works by McIntyre, Anthony Coleman, Lainie Fefferman, Enno Poppe, Mario Diaz de León, and others. (509 Atlantic Ave., Brooklyn. roulette.org. June 27 at 8.)